The main benefits of colour-coded cleaning are:

- It helps to minimise the risk of cross contamination of areas by micro organisms, allergens and foreign bodies
- Where colour coded equipment is assigned to a matching colour area, storage, shelf or wall space it is easy to identify tools and equipment that are out of place
- It is a simple system that is easy to understand especially for complex workplaces with a diverse workforce operating across multiple shifts and locations
- It improves workplace safety and procedures and leads to a more organised and cooperative workplace culture
- It can maximise the service life of cleaning equipment by ensuring that tools fit-for-purpose are used in the correct environment, thus reducing costs
- It simplifies the procurement and re-order process with easy inventory control
- And lastly from an aesthetic and brand prospective it creates confidence in the plant operator that they are organised, responsible, pro-active and capable of ensuring high standards of hygiene and product safety and security.
